Location:
St. Thomas, USVI

Located on an out-island of St. Thomas, USVI, the Carib Island Villages is the first installment of a three parcel village group. The site contains one of the only public access beaches on the island. Glatting Jackson balanced the public access with the creation of a private resort ambience by locating all cars in perimeter parking courts. The only vehicles allowed within the grounds are the electric carts used to shuttle guests and luggage to the units. All units have great views of beach or pool scenes. Units were staggered to allow views between the forward units and to bring sea breezes through the property. A second tier of units set in the hill allow for unobstructed, breathtaking views of Honeymoon Bay.
